

Where to buy

Making sure that you purchase your reptile from a reputable dealer is very important. Most pet stores do not bother keeping records of a snake's age, it's parents, feeding records, etc. Pet stores also do not know very much about the reptiles that they have available. Of course, this is not the case with every pet shop, but unfortunately it is with many. Purchasing from a reputable reptile breeder allows you to ask questions directly to the person that propagated these snakes. There are a number of exclusive reptile breeders around that keep these records and are very knowledgeable about the animals that they have available. Here at Gettysburg Reptiles all of the snakes in our inventory are produced on site unless otherwise specified. We keep very tedious records so that when you buy a snake from Gettysburg Reptiles you know exactly what it is, when it was born, how much it has eaten, and if it is eating frozen/thawed or live rodents. This information is essential when choosing a happy healthy pet.
